17 The Consumer Healthcare Products Association ("CHPA"), Council for Responsible 18 Nutrition ("CRN"), and Natural Products Association submit this response to the request for 19 relevant information on the developmental and reproductive toxicity of caffeine.<sup>1</sup> We join in

21 <sup>1</sup> The Consumer Healthcare products Association ("CHPA"), founded in 1881, is committed to promoting the 22 increasingly vital role of over-the-counter (OTC) medicines and nutritional supplements in America's healthcare system through science, education and advocacy. CHPA represents manufacturers and distributors of OTC products and dietary supplements.

23 The Council for Responsible Nutrition ("CRN"), founded in 1973, is a Washington, D.C.-based trade association 24 representing ingredient suppliers and manufacturers in the dietary supplement industry. CRN's mission is to enhance and sustain a climate for its member companies to responsibly market dietary supplements and their 25 ingredients by maintaining and improving confidence among consumers, media, government leaders, regulators, healthcare professionals and other decision makers with respect to its members' products.

26 The Natural Products Association, founded in 1936 is the nation's largest and oldest non-profit organization 27 dedicated to the natural products industry. The Natural Products Association represents more than 10,000 retailers, manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors of natural products, including natural/organic foods, dietary 28 supplements, and natural/organic personal care.

1 the comments of the American Beverage Association (“ABA”) submitted by F. Jay Murray,
2 Ph.D., and encourage the Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment staff to strongly 3 consider the data outlined in ABA’s submission as the Hazard Identification Document is 4 prepared.

5 CHPA, CRN, and Natural Products Association members market over-the-counter 6 medicines and dietary supplements, some of which include caffeine. These caffeine containing 7 products provide important health benefits to consumers. As an example, caffeine is an 8 effective analgesic adjuvant –that is, it enhances the pain-relieving effects of aspirin, 9 acetaminophen, and ibuprofen. This effect is well established. See, e.g., Renner et al. (2007)
10 Caffeine accelerates absorption and enhances the analgesic effect of acetaminophen, J. Clin.
11 Pharmacol. Vol. 47 (6) 715-26; Migliardi et al. (1994) Caffeine as an analgesic adjuvant in 12 tension headache, Clin. Pharmacol Ther. 56(5): 576-86; Schachtel et al. (1991) Caffeine as an 13 Analgesic Adjuvant, Arch. Intern. Med. Vol. 151 (4) 733-37.

14 Given the widespread use of caffeine and its well documented benefits in over-the-15 counter medicines and dietary supplements, it is important that consumers are given 16 information that is complete, accurate, and not misleading. We urge OEHHA to thoroughly 17 evaluate all of the available data in preparing the Hazard Identification Document for caffeine.
